COVENANT.

You, — — —, acknowledging your unworthiness to be in, and inability to keep covenant with God, or to perform any spiritual duty as you ought, unless the Lord do enable you thereto by his Spirit dwelling in you,—Do, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, and in trust and confidence of his free grace assisting you, enter into this holy covenant, freely, sincerely, and solemnly, before God, and his holy angels, and this assembly, wherein you profess and promise—

First, and above all, to take God to be your God, and to cleave to Him as your chiefest and only good.

You profess your belief in the Holy Scriptures, that they were given by inspiration of God, and are the only infallible rule of faith and practice.

You believe that the Father, Son and Holy Ghost are one God, the only proper object of religious worship.

You believe that man was created upright and holy, and that he fell from that happy state by sinning against God,—that, by the fall, all mankind are by nature dead in trespasses and sins, and entirely destitute of holiness,—and continue alienated from God, until renewed and reconciled by the special influence of the Holy Spirit.

You believe that the Lord Jesus Christ has made an atonement for sin, and brought in an everlasting righteousness, so that God can be just, and yet the justifier of every one that believeth in Jesus,—that he is the only Mediator between God and man,—the King and Head of his church,—and convinced that you are a guilty sinner, you desire to submit to him in all the characters with which he is invested for the benefit of the children of men.

You believe the Holy Spirit to be the Renewer, Sanctifier and Comforter of his people ; and sensible of your own weakness and depravity, you promise to seek the influences of divine grace to instruct, strengthen and guide you in the way of holiness, and to fit you for the inheritance of the saints in light.

You believe that all true Christians are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation.

You believe that the happiness of the righteous and the misery of the wicked, after death, will be eternal.

You believe that the Lord Jesus Christ has a visible church in the world, and that the terms of membership are the evidence of a change of heart

The belief that man was created in the image and likeness of God, and that he had a special relationship with God, was a central theme of the Christian faith. This belief was based on the Bible, which stated that God created man in His own image and likeness, and that man was made in the image of God. This belief was also reflected in the teachings of the Church, which taught that man was created in the image of God and that he had a special relationship with God.

by the renewing grace of God, and a credible profession of faith and repentance.

You also believe that God has instituted Baptism and the Lord's Supper as ordinances to be observed in his church to the end of the world.

You do solemnly give up yourself and your offspring to God, determining to renounce sin and obey him forever.

You promise to walk with this church in a due submission to and attendance on all the ordinances of the gospel, and that in your whole conversation and conduct, you will make it your endeavor to practice the rules of our holy religion.

You submit yourself to the watch and discipline, the administrations and censures of this church, so far as they shall be guided by God's holy word.

Of the integrity of your heart, you call God, the searcher of all hearts to witness, beseeching him to assist your sincere endeavors to observe this holy covenant, in all the branches thereof. Amen.

Do you thus profess, covenant and promise?

We then, the church of Christ in this place, do, charitably and joyfully, receive you into our communion and fellowship, promising that we will watch over you for your spiritual good, admonish and pray for you, counsel and comfort you, as your circumstances may require, and our acquaintance with you shall permit.

by the increasing growth of the world and a considerable portion of the world's population.

It is also known that the world's population is increasing and the world's population is increasing.

It is also known that the world's population is increasing and the world's population is increasing.

It is also known that the world's population is increasing and the world's population is increasing.

It is also known that the world's population is increasing and the world's population is increasing.

It is also known that the world's population is increasing and the world's population is increasing.

It is also known that the world's population is increasing and the world's population is increasing.

It is also known that the world's population is increasing and the world's population is increasing.

And now, beloved in the Lord, let it be impressed upon your mind, that you have come under solemn obligations from which you can never escape. Wherever you go, these vows will be upon you,—they will follow you to the bar of God, and abide upon you in eternity. You can never be again as you have been. Hereafter the eyes of the world will be upon you. If you walk worthy of your profession, you will be a credit and comfort to us ; but, if otherwise, you will be an occasion of grief and reproach. But, beloved, we are persuaded better things of you, and things that accompany salvation, though we thus speak. May the Lord guide and preserve you until death, and may you and we be finally accepted of Him, through the riches of his free grace in Christ Jesus. AMEN.

The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the various methods which have been proposed for the determination of the rate of reaction between a radical and a molecule. The most common of these is the method of initial rates, in which the initial concentration of the radical is varied and the initial rate of reaction is measured. This method is simple and direct, but it is subject to a number of errors, and it is often difficult to obtain accurate results. Another method which has been proposed is the method of steady-state concentrations, in which the concentration of the radical is maintained at a constant value by the addition of a suitable reagent. This method is more accurate than the method of initial rates, but it is also more complicated, and it is often difficult to obtain accurate results. A third method which has been proposed is the method of continuous flow, in which the radical and the molecule are mixed in a flow tube, and the rate of reaction is measured by the change in concentration of the radical as it passes through the tube. This method is very accurate, but it is also very complicated, and it is often difficult to obtain accurate results.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

THE town of Dorchester was settled in 1630, by a company of Christians, who, with their pastors, Rev. John Wareham and Rev. John Maverick, emigrated from England for the enjoyment of greater civil and religious privileges. In 1636, Mr. Maverick died, and Mr. Wareham, with most of his church, removed to Windsor, Connecticut.

Previous to their departure, a new church, (still existing as the First Church,) was formed, under the pastoral care of Rev. Richard Mather, one of the most eminent ministers of his time, and the principal author of the "Cambridge Platform."

During the ministry of the eighth pastor of this Church, Rev. Dr. Harris, on account of the increasing population of the town, it became necessary to form a Second Society; and a meeting-house having been built, on the 1st of January, A. D. 1808, the Second Church, consisting then of sixty-four members, was duly organized; Rev. John Pierce, of Brookline, preaching on that occasion.

On the 7th of December following, Rev. John Codman was ordained the first pastor. Rev. William E. Channing preached the sermon, from the words: "Be instant in season and out of season."

Soon after difficulties arose, owing to a difference in doctrinal sentiment between the Pastor and some of the Church and Society, which resulted in the withdrawal of about twenty members in 1813.

In 1827, the Church was strengthened by the addition of fifty-four converts. In 1829, twenty-one members were dismissed, and formed into a new Orthodox Church, which took the name of the Village Church. In 1840, thirty-three were added to the Church upon profession of faith, and in 1842, thirty-five; of whom twenty were young men.

On the 23d of December, 1847, the long and devoted ministry of Dr. Codman was terminated by his death, in the sixty-seventh year of his age, and the fortieth of his ministry. The records show that he attended 649 funerals; solemnized 295 marriages; baptized 783 persons, 702 of whom were infants; and was permitted to welcome to the fellowship of the Church, 639 members, 482 of whom were received by profession. Of those who were connected with the Church at his ordination, only eleven remained at the time of his death.

On the 13th of July, 1848, Rev. James H. Means was ordained the second pastor of the Church.

From the beginning, 785 have been connected with this Church, of whom 520 have here first professed their faith. Eleven of its members have entered the ministry. Over 220 have been removed from its membership by death; about 240 dismissed to other churches. The present number of members is 302; sixty of whom are non-residents.

DEACON'S ORDINATION CHARGE.

The following Charge was first used in 1724, by Rev. John Danforth, then Pastor of the First Church, Dorchester. It is inserted here, because delivered by Dr. Codman, at the induction into office of the Deacons chosen during his ministry.

THE glorious King of the Church and world, the Son of God, our Lord Jesus Christ, instituted the holy office of Deaconship by inspiration to his Apostles in the primitive church, and appointed that even the Gentile churches should have men, qualified as he has specially directed, chosen unto and invested with the sacred office.

Although the office of Deaconship is ecclesiastical and sacred, yet is it specified and limited unto the temporal good things of the Church, which are offered and dedicated unto the house and service of God for the uses of piety and charity.

Of the Church's outward treasure, of all offerings and gifts given to the Church for the supply of outward need—the care and management belongs to the Deacons; and therewith the Deacons are to supply the tables which the Church is to provide for,—viz. the Lord's table and the tables of such as are in necessity, to whom they are to distribute in simplicity and singleness of heart.

Ordination is the solemn committing of office ecclesiastical, unto persons to whom that office doth belong; the solemn putting of them into the actual possession of that place, station, dignity, trust and charge in the Church of God that they were chosen to, and had accepted of.

We do,—in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, the glorious Head of the Church in heaven and on earth, ordain you to be a Deacon of this Church, and put you into possession and administration of that holy and honorable office of Deaconship, in which you are to conjoin our beloved brethren who were in office before you.

And, forasmuch as God hath set you up in this Church not to be a Lett, but to be an Help,—we solemnly charge you to watch and to pray, and to labor all that you can, that you may promote and further all religion, and virtue, and charity, and peace, and beneficence among us; and uprightly, and prudently, and faithfully, and with great humility, and yet with liberty and holy courage, and without fear, and without partiality, and in singleness of heart as towards God, discharge, not only every part of your work as a Christian, but also every part of your office as a Deacon, accountably to God and our Lord Jesus Christ, to your own conscience, and to the Church by the help of Christ.

And we assure you for your comfort, that so using and discharging the office of a Deacon well, by the grace and help of your glorious Lord and ours, you will, though without any proper merit of your own, yet of God's infinite mercy, purchase or gain, or obtain to yourself a good degree and great boldness in the faith. And, when the great Shepherd shall appear, you shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away. AMEN.

DIRECTIONS

TO THOSE COMMENCING A RELIGIOUS LIFE.

MOSTLY SELECTED FROM VARIOUS AUTHORS.

REMEMBER that the Christian life is to be like "the light, which shineth more and more unto the perfect day." Therefore, when the hope of pardon dawns in the heart, do not consider the great business of life as accomplished, but only as begun.

Ever strive to maintain great earnestness in religion. Remember that you need daily to repent, confess your sin, cast yourself in faith on Christ, seek pardon and grace; as you did, when you first gave yourself to the Lord.

Seek evidence of piety not so much in high emotions of any kind, as in real humility, sorrow for sin, desires for righteousness, and a constant effort to regulate your daily life by the will of God.

Do not expect to find in your own experience, every thing you have heard or read of in the experience of others. "There are diversities of operations, but it is the same God, which worketh all in all."

If troubled by doubts, look away from yourself to the infinite grace of God in Christ; and seek earnestly for new light, and a renewed experience of his love. "Then shall ye know, if ye follow on to know the Lord."

Do not be afraid of indulging in feelings which seem to be right, from the fear that you are self-deceived. Go forward, and do your whole duty, and God will save you from deception while thus employed.

Expect not to be made very happy by religion, unless you become eminent in piety. A half-way Christian enjoys neither the pleasures of the world, nor the pleasures of religion.

Do not look at the practice and example of other Christians, but at the word of God, in forming the standard of piety at which you aim. Consider not what professors of religion are, but what they should be.

Do not suffer a day to pass, without reading the Bible with devout attention. Strive also to obtain clear and full conceptions of the great doctrines there revealed.

Never omit for a single day the duty of secret prayer. Make known to God every doubt and fear; and ask, in submission to his will, with earnestness and faith, for each blessing you desire.

If you sincerely think you are a Christian, and the Church are satisfied with the evidence of your piety, it is your duty to make a public profession of your faith.

Prepare for that most solemn act by much meditation, self-examination and prayer. Then go forward, not in your own strength, but trusting that "He, who hath begun a good work in you, will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ."

QUESTIONS

SELF-EXAMINATION.

THE solemn obligations of the Covenant have been deliberately assumed by every member of this Church; they cannot be thrown off; he that 'openeth his mouth unto the Lord, cannot go back.' It is, therefore, most important that Christians should often examine themselves, whether they 'walk worthy of their vocation;' especially as is enjoined by Paul, (1 Cor. xi. 28,) in preparation for the Lord's Supper.

The following questions, designed to aid them in this duty, are earnestly commended to the members of this Church.

Do I keep sufficiently in mind that I am not my own? that I have given myself to God in an everlasting covenant?

Do I make daily efforts, in reliance on the promised aid of the Spirit, to overcome all sin, to grow in grace? Is the standard at which I aim, the perfect holiness of God, or the state of devotedness commonly seen in the Church?

Am I faithful in the performance of the private duties of religion; in reading the Bible, in devotional retirement? Do I enjoy the hours thus spent? Under their influence, do my faith and hope and love steadily increase?

What is the influence of my example on those around ? Does it prove to the unconverted that there is reality and power in religion ? What do those who know me best, think of my piety ?

Is the Church strengthened by my connection with it ? Am I deeply interested in its prosperity ? Do I take my part in sustaining its meetings ? Would I rather suffer, if need be, than be the occasion of injury to it ?

Do I love the brethren ; watch over them for their spiritual good ; help them forward in the Christian life ? Is the law of kindness on my tongue ?

Do I attend constantly on the services of the sanctuary ? Do I join regularly and gladly in the commemoration of my Saviour's dying love ? In the Sacrament, do I solemnly renew my covenant with God ?

If a parent, are my children baptized, instructed in the truth, daily commended to God in prayer, and educated for eternity ?

Do I love the souls of sinners ? Do I feel for them ? Do I pray for them ? Is there one to whom I am faithful ; for whose conversion I feel constant anxiety ?

Do I strive to 'do good to all, as I have opportunity ?' Am I ready to deny myself for this purpose ? Is it a pleasure to contribute for the advancement of Christ's kingdom ? What proportion of my income do I devote to the Lord ?

For strength to perform all these and other duties, do I depend solely on divine aid ? And after I have done all, do I trust in Christ alone for salvation ?
